Dear Mr. Djoghlaf,

Re : GEF Operational Focal Point Endorsement for Conservation and Sustainable Management of Belowground Biodiversity

I would like to express our interest in the initiative to develop research work and action plans on Conservation and Sustainable Management of Belowground Biodiversity. This endeavour, coordinated by the Tropical Soil Biology and Fertility (TSBF) Programme (Nairobi, Kenya) is being undertaken by consortia of scientists from Indonesia, Brazil, Ivory Coast, India, Kenya, Mexico, and Uganda.

I expect that the project will become a valuable contribution to the GEF objectives and I am confident that an Indonesian consortium of scientists formed on the basis of the team involved in the pilot study in the GEF-sponsored ASB Project (with the help from TSBF and ICRAF) will be able to meet the objectives set and shared in the unique south-south cooperation.

I understand that the Indonesian team which includes scientists from University of Lampung (Lead), Bogor Agricultural University (Member), University of Gadjah Mada (Member), University of Brawijaya (Member), CRIFC/RIFCB (Member), BRIEC (Member), ICRAF (Member), and IC-SEA BIOTROP (Member) will conduct corresponding studies and actions on the basis of the ASB-benchmark areas in Indonesia so that the output should contribute to achieving agricultural sustainability and stipulations land-use policies in the country.

I also realize that this is a UNEP project and that UNEP is the GEF Implementing Agency of the project. Therefore, I endorse the initiative and recommend that the proposal can be agreed by GEF Bureau.

Yours sincerely,

ENDORSEMENT LETTER BY THE KENYA GOVERNMENT FOR THE PROJECT ON MANAGEMENT OF AGROBIODIVERSITY FOR SUSTAINABLE LAND USE AND GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL BENEFITS (MAGLUS)

The project document for Management of Agrobiodiversity for Sustainable Land Use and Global Environmental Benefits (MAGLUS) was reviewed and approved by the National GEF Review Panel Task Force. It is noted with satisfaction that this project intends to particularly focus on below-ground biodiversity, the complex community of organisms which regulate soil fertility, greenhouse gas emission and soil carbon sequestration. It is also noted that the project will be implemented in seven tropical countries, including Kenya.

The Government appreciates and supports this new endeavour in trying to demonstrate the balance between local costs and global benefits of maintaining higher levels of Agrobiodiversity during land-use intensification for Agriculture. In this regard therefore, the government endorses this project proposal for funding by Global Environment Facility (GEF).

Dear Sir,

MANAGEMENT OF AGROBIODIVERSITY FOR SUSTAINABLE LAND USE AND GLOBAL ENVIRONMENTAL BENEFITS (MAGLUS) PROJECT.

We have reviewed Uganda's project document that has been developed on the basis of participatory consultation in country, on the above named project.

As per our earlier communication ref. ED/C/1575/11 of July 31, 1997 on this subject, I wish to affirm that the Government of Uganda welcomes this project that supports sustainable use of natural resources in an effort to eradicate poverty. The programme will go along way to complement existing initiatives related to biodiversity conservation and management as well as to develop sustainable agricultural systems.

This is therefore to express Government's support for the project and endorse its implementation.

Yours faithfully,
